

Portability, portability, portability, yes! There is no reason to delay implementation of regulations already on the books regarding the portability of cellular phone numbers from carrier to carrier. This feature is clearly the key competition and better service! Protestations of excessive costs are merely a smoke screen to continue the hoarding of customers by service providers. The same portability should apply to email addresses too!